

Why We Do What We Do

The staff of EcoTech Summer Camp are privileged to work with kids at an impressionable age. Research shows that students resist taking risks at school, not answering a question unless they are certain they know the answer. Throughout the week, we watch our campers grow before our very eyes. We do difficult things in beautiful places. We immerse them in the wonders of the natural world, and part of the trick is to move them from their comfort zone to the challenge/growth zone. So often, we yearn to stay comfortable, but true growth happens when we venture off into the unknown and take some risk. EcoTech staff works hard to mitigate that risk, and all of our challenges are by choice. We strive to move them into their growth zone is where real learning takes place.
